<td>Introduction to Ancient Greek: Semester I</td>
<td>This course is an introduction to the rich and beautiful language of ancient Greek, the language of Homer, Plato and Euripides. In the first two semesters, students will begin to learn the grammar and syntax of the language and start developing the vocabulary necessary to appreciate and understand Greek with the goal of reading as soon as possible. Throughout the semester, students will explore inscriptions and dip our toes into both Herodotus and biblical Greek. This course is a prerequisite for GRK102.</td>

<td>Introduction to Ancient Greek: Semester II</td>
<td>This course is a continuation of GRK101. We shall complete the study of Greek grammar and continue to develop vocabulary and reading skills. We shall read selections from Sophocles, Euripides, Lysias, Apollodorus, Demosthenes, Aristotle, and Plato, among others.</td>

<td>Reading Greek Prose: Plato's Ion</td>
<td>Throughout the course, students will read Plato's ION, his dialogue in which Socrates challenges traditional Greek values about religion, the existence of (divine) inspiration, the value of poetry, and the nature of truth itself. We will also use Plato's text to review grammar and syntax.</td>

<td>Ancient Greek Comedy</td>
<td>This course is a study of Aristophanic comedy: problems of the literary interpretation of Aristophanes, his relation to Greek thought and public life, and the nature of comedy.</td>

<td>The Greek Novel</td>
<td>In the course, we will read selections from Longus' DAPHNIS AND CHLOE and Chariton's CHAEREOAS AND CALLIRHOE. The former is a story of young love in a pastoral setting on the island of Lesbos; the latter, an incident-packed narrative in which a young husband and wife are separated, but after many vicissitudes, reunited. Subjects covered will include genre and setting, narrative and descriptive techniques, cultural context, and likely readership.</td>

<td>The Homeric Hymns</td>
<td>Students in this course will read the Homeric hymns to Demeter, Apollo, Hermes, and Aphrodite in ancient Greek. They will also read modern scholarship on the structure of the hymns as examples of narrative discourse and on the mythology of the various divinities. Each of these hymns celebrates one of the principal divinities of the Greek pantheon, and each incorporates a story of the god’s adventures. Class sessions will include discussion of the manner in which gender exercises an influence on the structure and content of the hymns.</td>

<td>GRK275</td>
<td>Homeric Epic</td>
<td>This is a close reading of selections in Greek from the ODYSSEY on the wanderings of Odysseus; his encounters with Polyphemus, Circe, and Calypso; and his return to Ithaca. Discussion of major scholarly approaches to the Odyssey and Homeric epic more broadly.</td>

<td>Plato: SYMPOSIUM</td>
<td>We will read selections in Greek from Plato's SYMPOSIUM, the famous dialogue that examines different facets of love and desire. We will read the remaining sections in translation. Additional readings will include Plato's PHAEDRUS and Xenophon's SYMPOSIUM in translation and modern scholarship on these works. Topics we will discuss include the figure of Socrates, the construction of gender roles, masculinity and femininity, the role of reason and desire in the good life, and questions of genre.</td>

<td>Greek Tragedy: Euripides</td>
<td>Euripides is well known for being experimental and controversial, in his own time and beyond. Aristophanes famously accuses him of corrupting his audience by bringing too much of a democratic sentiment to his plays—women and slaves having way too much to say. Nietzsche much later will be interested in the very death of tragedy. In this course, we will explore this legacy by reading one of his plays in the original along with diverse approaches to his work. The selection of the play will be determined by the composition of the student-group and previous exposure to Greek drama.</td>

<td>The Great Greek Creation Myth: Hesiod's Theogony</td>
<td>In this seminar, we will read Hesiod's Theogony, the Greek creation myth, in the original ancient Greek and examine this fabulous work in light of other creation stories of the ancient Near East, Egyptian, and Hittite cultures by which it was influenced. Through examination of structural themes and motifs (how the universe was created and ordered, the role of</td> violence, the origins of an application of justice, the creation of mankind, the shaping of women), we will discuss whether and how the Theogony diverges from other creation myths to establish or reflect values that can be said to be uniquely Greek. Discussion will be supplemented by passages from Hesiod's Works and Days, along with other creation myths and secondary scholarship.
